PAIR OF HORSES IN MAD DASH

on Market Street.

The business section of the city was the scene of a lively runaway this morning when the handsome pair of bays owned by Hon. Woodbury Langdon dashed through Pleasant street, across Market square and down Market street at a break neck pace.

The animals were in the vicinity of the Portsmouth hospital when they took flight and in spite of the efforts of their driver, Mr. Ridge, dashed down Judds avenue and through the business section.

The driver stuck pluckily to his task and would undoubtedly have succeeded in bringing the frightened animals to a stop.

At the junction of Market and Hanover street the runaway animals collided with a horse belonging to Tony Pinto of North Kittery, which was attached to a wagon loaded with apples. The force of the collision was such as to throw all three of the animals to the ground. In a short space of time a large number of persons collected and willing hands soon got one of the Langdon horses on his feet, as well as the one owned by Mr. Pinto. The other animal was unable to stand on his feet and Dr. Boland, the veterinary, was summoned. After an examination the animal was placed on a drape and hauled to the Langdon stable.

While the veterinary could discover no bones broken, he was of the opinion that the animal had sustained internal injuries.

The driver, Mr. Ridge, escaped uninjured, but will for some time to come undoubtedly remember his wild ride.

CASTRO AN UNDESIRABLE

Secretary Nagel Decides That Former President of Venezuela Must Leave Country

Washington, Jan. 30.—Cipriano Castro, former president of Venezuela, was today denied admission to the United States as a visitor by Charles Nagel, secretary of commerce and labor. The question whether while President of his country he was a party to the killing of General Paredes, was the cause of Secretary Nagel's order for his deportation.

The cabinet ministers sustained the adverse report of the immigration authorities against Castro on the ground that his declaration to answer "may in itself constitute an admission by conduct" of the commission of a felony. The immigration law bars from entry any person convicted of or admitting the commission of a crime involving moral turpitude, providing it is not purely a political offense. The secretary held that the murder of General Paredes was not a purely political crime.

Further, the secretary declared that an alien was compelled to answer "yes" or "no" any pertinent question regarding his admissibility. If permitted to refuse he maintained that "the immigration service might just as well adjourn."

The alleged information against Castro was furnished the department of commerce and labor by the state department and Secretary Nagel in his decision frankly admits that but for the state department's action Castro probably would have been admitted to this country without question.

"Cipriano Castro's former position as president of Venezuela," he added,

"would under ordinary circumstances have furnished further inducement for such action. The immigration bureau, he declared, had followed the same course in this case as has been pursued in any other where official warning had been given regarding the character of an alien."

"It is officially charged," said Mr. Nagel, "that Castro, while president of Venezuela and in full possession of the authority of that state directed the killing of Paredes without trial or hearing of any kind, Paredes at that time having been made a prisoner while engaged in a revolt against Castro."

"The information that Castro ordered the killing of the general under these circumstances, Mr. Nagel declares to be specific and confirmed by authenticated copies of original telegrams. The secretary admitted that decisions in extradition cases seem to hold that such a crime would be political, although this view has been questioned by high authority."

Regarding the question as to the right of the alien to answer well-directed questions to determine his admissibility, the secretary holds that the recognition of that privilege would result virtually in the "admission of all aliens of the failure of proof against them." He disagrees with the contention that the admission of the commission of a felony cannot be forced under the immigration law but must

PORTSMOUTH IS TO HAVE A CHANCE

Good News for Portsmouth
Navy Yard Employees.

The following telegram received this afternoon by The Herald from Washington will be good news to the men employed on the Portsmouth navy yard, as well as to the citizens of Portsmouth who are interested in our prosperity.

Two colliers have been authorized and it already has been decided to build one on the west coast. The telegram is as follows:

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31 1913

P. W. Harbord,

Portsmouth, N. H.

The navy department has decided to let Portsmouth bid on the collier.

J. H. GATLINGER.

STILL AFTER FIGHT.

Haverhill Man Makes a Hit
With His Challenge.

What do you know about this? A drummer who visits many cities and towns of the state can get no man to fight him. This Knight of the grip who represents a paper firm in Haverhill has certainly got away with his title challenge in every town but one where he applies the challenge to all but one man. The reason this man is not included in the list for a ring-side contest is because he is the same weight as the drummer from Ward 1111. The drummer weighs 372 pounds. Do you wonder that he can get by with his usual greeting, "I will fight any man of my weight in the town."

A search for some bunch of avoirdupois to meet the Haverhill heavy-weight has failed to locate anybody to go after him with a barnyard swing, and it looks as if "West" will have to join some physical culture association and get down to 185 before he gets a clinch in this town.

SECOND ACT OF BALKAN WAR

Bombardment of the Holy City May Be Resumed on Monday by the Allies

London, Jan. 30.—The curtain may rise on the second act of the Balkan war next Monday. The allies denounced the armistice at 7 o'clock tonight, and, if events take the prescribed course, the bombardment of Adrianople will follow after an interval of four days. Indeed, the bombardment has been scheduled for 7 o'clock Monday morning.

Yet, even at this eleventh hour, war is by no means assured. Only a few hours before the allies proclaimed their momentous decision, the Ottoman government presented its reply to the joint note of the powers of Jan. 17. Never has a diplomatic problem taken such swift and surprising changes as these negotiations for peace. The Young Turks who seized the government with shouts of defiance have undergone a marvelous transformation. Instead of drawing the battle line at the question of surrendering Adrianople, they offer a compromise which comes so near meeting the Bulgarian demands that a settlement should not be impossible, and they leave the Aegean islands to the disposition of the powers.

The difference between what Constantinople is ready to give and what Bulgaria is ready to accept has been reduced to such small proportions that even some of the Balkan delegates believe a compromise may yet be found. Constantinople now asks simply the retention of that section of Adrianople where the holy shrines are situated. Bulgaria always meant to leave the mosques and shrines to Turkey, and even to enter the right of extraterritoriality, thus giving them something of the status of the Vatican in Rome. The vital differences between the two nations amount merely to Turkey's demanding the shrines and the sections surrounding them.

The Thracian frontier line, therefore, with the exception of the town of Adrianople has been practically agreed to, as Turkey is ready to leave to the

GYPSY MOTHS IN ABUNDANCE

the Forestry of This City.

State Inspector W. H. McQuade of the bureau of entomology, who came to this city to look over the situation in behalf of Prof. W. C. O'Keefe and in conjunction with the board of public works finds that immediate action must be taken to prevent the spread of the gypsy moth. Practically all the forestry of Portsmouth is in danger of destruction from the ravages of the destructive pest that the city, that for more than a hundred years has prided herself on her beautiful shade trees, is in danger of seeing one of her principal assets of beautiful adornment snatched away.

Some people have been farsighted enough to destroy the gypsy moth in its present nest form. Others have not. By their inactivity they have promised to counteract the operations of the thoughtful for Inspector McQuade says that when the gypsy moth develops there is no precedent from which it can be assumed that they will not branch away from the trees of the thoughtless.

So dangerous is the situation that the inspector recommended the immediate cutting down of trees in the vicinity of the city's pumping stations, and on the city's property. Perhaps at the grounds of the Portsmouth high school in the high poplars planted when the school building was erected had, have the gypsy moth swarmed to

MILITARY BALL AND PRIZE DRILL

The annual concert, prize drill and ball of the First Company, Coast Artillery Corps, N. H. G. was held at Freeman's hall on Thursday evening and with a very large attendance, both the galleries and floor being well crowded.

The hall was very handsomely decorated, a profusion of bunting, signal flags etc., being used with fine effect, with the National colors, while the stage was banked with palms.

Hay's Orchestra of ten pieces gave a fine concert program.

The company appeared in a prize drill and made a very fine showing. The judges were Lieut. Allen, U. S. A. of Fort Constitution, Captain Pann of the third company and Lieut. Dixon of the fourth company. The whole company were drilled by Captain Harriman and gradually the men were eliminated until a squad of four men were left. First Sergeant A. F. Remick, Q. M. Sergt. J. ## Bat Nelson. Now a Benedict, Announces His Retirement

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Bat Nelson, the former holder of the lightweight championship of the world, has announced his retirement from the ring. Bat recently married Miss May King of this city, and shortly after the wedding he announced his intention to retire from boxing. After the honeymoon is over Nelson states he will go into the real estate business in Hegewisch, Ill. Miss King and Bat Nelson met each other on 1905 peak on the 23d of 11 months several years ago. They came into Chicago on train No. 12 of 11 and took hotel at 8.13 the morning of Jan. 23, and their wedding dinner was given at 4.30 p.m. Miss King is twenty-three years old. "That is a hard combination, in back against your wedding day and the battle," but I'm not worried. Picture shows Bat Nelson and his bride.

One need not be familiar with the "Cuthbert" dialect, nor possessed of Scotch sympathies to appreciate this most entertaining performance. While much of the humor may properly be described as subtle, one need only to have a human heart and a human mind to appreciate this play thoroughly.

No episode are all of the players and a cleverly in each character portrayed and it is well-nigh impossible to select the most accomplished members of the company.

Thirty, in the hands of Molly Pearson, is a captivating young creature who fills the part as a kind of Ethelred. Helen is the relentless Tannous of the Ring, Edmund Devereux is captured in his role, while Amy Singleton proves herself a thorough artist as Ellen Tannous. In fact each player is exactly suited to the role he or she portrays.

LARGER AND BETTER.

New England Engine and Boat Show Opens Feb. 1.

For ten years the New England Engine and Boat association has held its annual motor boat and engine show in Boston, each year growing larger and better. More interest has been shown this year than ever before, with the result that when the doors are opened to the public on Saturday evening, the Charles building will contain the finest collection of motor boats, engines and accessories ever assembled under one roof.

Manager Chester I. Campbell has also been fortunate this year in being able to obtain as added attractions two that will appeal to every boat lover. Everybody knows of the wonderful achievement of Capt. Thomas Fleming Day, the editor and publisher of Rudder, Capt. Day with his two companions embarked on the "Detroit," the little 25-foot motor boat in Detroit, Michigan, and successfully crossed the Atlantic to Russia. This is one of the most remarkable feats in motor boat history, and the thrilling story will be told by Capt. Day in four illustrated lectures on Monday evening, Feb. 3, Wednesday evening, Feb. 5 and Friday evening, Feb. 7. These lectures are free to all those who attend the boat show.

Another attraction will be the fastest motor boat, hydroplane type, in the world, the Baby Reliance II. This wonderful little 20-foot boat has won practically every championship the past season and she, together with her great collection of trophies, will be seen for the first time in the East.

There will also be shown every conceivable type of boat from the 14-ft dory with its 1 horse power engine up to the big semi-cruisers with every comfort possible, electric lights, bath and staterooms, as well as all the well known engines and the comfort giving and safety devices of the accessory manufacturers.

As usual Manager Campbell has arranged for an appropriate setting for the boats in his decorative scheme and Edna Francis Simmons' orchestra will render two concerts daily. The show opens Saturday, Feb. 1, at 7 p. m., and will continue all next week from 10 a. m. to 10.30 p. m.

MELLEN REINDICTED
BY FEDERAL GRAND JURY

New York, Jan. 30.—Charles S. Mellen, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company, and E. J. Chamberlin and Alfred W. Smithers, president and chairman respectively, of the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada, were reindicted today by the Federal Grand Jury for violation of the Sherman Antitrust law in connection with an alleged monopoly of the agreement between the New Haven and Grand Trunk roads.

All three were indicted by the Federal Grand Jury some weeks ago, but their attorneys attacked the indictment on the ground that one of the Grand Jurors was a resident of New Jersey.

As a result the Government empaneled a new Grand Jury and the evidence heard by the previous jury was presented to this one. The indictment returned today supersedes those returned previously.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Adkins announced that he would make every possible effort to have the case tried by the middle of February.

AS LOUIS XI.

Mantell Opens the Second Week of His Boston Engagement.

Robert B. Mantell will open the second week of his engagement at the Shubert Theatre Boston, next Monday, with his first Boston performance of Louis XI from the French of Casimir Delavigne. Mr. Mantell is the first actor to play this part since the late Sir Henry Irving. Louis was considered by a number of Irving's admirers his masterpiece. Louis is a character in which the diabolical predominates overwhelmingly and is considered one of the strongest personages that has ever been sketched by a dramatist. The physical transformation of Mr. Mantell from an actor of heroic physique in such parts as Macbeth and Othello, to the shriveled, deformed

Louis is said to be very remarkable.

"Julius Caesar" is the only other play in Mr. Mantell's second week's repertoire that was not included in the first. It will be presented Tuesday and Friday evenings. Of the three roles worthy of stellar interpretation, Mr. Mantell has chosen to play Brutus, as the most sympathetic. Marc Antony is played by Fritz Lehner, who has been Mr. Mantell's leading man for half a dozen seasons, and whose Antony is regarded as his masterpiece. Cassius, the third great role, is interpreted by Brigham Boyce, a new member of Mr. Mantell's company. Miss Florence Rockwell appears as Portia, the wife of Brutus. Caesar himself is played by Guy Lindsay, a veteran member of Mr. Mantell's company. The production of "Julius Caesar" is the most elaborate Mr. Mantell carries.

The other plays of the week are "Richard III," Wednesday afternoon; "Macbeth," Wednesday evening; "Othello," Thursday evening; "The Merchant of Venice," Saturday afternoon; and "Macbeth" again Saturday evening.

MORE WORK AT PANAMA CANAL

Washington, Jan. 30.—Recent slides of earth and rock into the Culobra Cut will make necessary great activity if the Panama Canal is to be opened before the end of the present calendar year, as has been predicted by Col. Goethals. More than 500,000 yards of earth and rock have fallen into the cut this month, and engineers fear that another impending break of Purple Hill will add not less than 1,000,000 yards.

For a long time the notorious Cucaracha slide, on the east bank of the canal, has been quiet, but on the afternoon of Jan. 15 the earth movement began so rapidly as to carry away some of the dirt cars and completely covered all of the railroad tracks in the canal except one.

Purple Hill is holding back a tremendous amount of earth, slowly moving toward the cut, but the hill is showing signs of weakness, and should it break away the canal prism would be almost filled at that point.

RESULT OF EXPERIMENTS

Washington, Jan. 30.—As a result of experiments carried out under the direction of the Department of Agriculture a method of combating the ravages of the mountain pine beetle has been found, according to a departmental report, issued today. The experiments were undertaken in Northeastern Oregon, where beetles had worked havoc over more than one million acres of valuable timber land. The pest had destroyed more than 8,000,000 trees.

In conjunction with the forest service and private owners of timber, the Department's experts confined their efforts to an area of 80,000 acres, with such success that while surrounding territory suffered heavily, the experimental grounds lost was 80 per cent less. The march of the beetle to the south and southeast, it is believed, will be checked as a result of the knowledge gained from the tests which have been outlined over a space of nearly five years.

CROSS IN PLACE ON CATHOLIC CHURCH

The new cross which surmounts the tall steeple of the church of the Immaculate Conception, was placed in position on Thursday. The cross is 14 feet high by 8 feet across the arms, and it is of copper over a steel frame. The cap which is 18 inches high is left in the natural copper, but the cross itself is gold leaf over copper, and it is a very handsome piece of work. It is fastened to the steeple by the cap and a three inch iron pipe goes up through the steeple and cross holding it securely in place.

The work of installing was witnessed by a good sized crowd.

KILLED AT EXETER

Manchester, Jan. 30.—George Bracey, a traveling salesman connected with the Haverhill, Mass., office of the United Shoe Machinery company, was instantly killed by the Bar Harbor express on the Boston & Maine railroad today. He was walking between the tracks on his way to the station and, when the engineer of the express whistled a warning, became confused and stepped directly in front of the train.

George Bracey was born in Merrimack, Me., Feb. 11, 1872. He moved to Nashua and then to this city, where he assisted his father in the confectionery business. He resided in this city for twelve years and two years ago went to Haverhill where he entered the employ of the United Shoe Machinery company. His untimely death put an end to a very successful career and came as a great shock to his relatives and friends of this city, where he was known and loved by many.

Mr. Bracey was a widower, having lost his wife, Mattie L. Bracey, nearly five years ago. He is survived by one daughter, Mildred, who is 17 years of age and a resident of Manchester.

Miss Maud Marold of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Horace A. Murray of State street.

Bad Tuberculosis
of Glands; Now Well

If you are a sufferer from Glandular Tuberculosis, or know of anyone so afflicted, it might be well to investigate this case, where the writer declares after a year of suffering, he found permanent relief and full recovery to health by using Beckman's Alternative, a medicine which has been effective in many cases of Tuberculosis.

257 Lariston St., Phila., Pa.
"Gentlemen:—In March, 1909, I was taken sick and my doctor pronounced my case 'Tuberculosis in the Glands.' Medical treatment did not help me, and on my doctor's advice, I went to a hospital to be operated upon, but relief was only temporary. I lost strength, and at times would have died again and fever. In April, 1910, I returned to the hospital, but the continued operations were not benefiting me.

In the meantime, a friend of mine advised Beckman's Alternative, saying it was good for Tuberculosis. The wounds in my neck were still open and in a frightful condition when I started to take it. After using two bottles, I found I was improving, having gained weight, could eat, and was able to sleep. I continued using it until I was well, which was in November, 1910. Before I took the medicine, I had three hemorrhages; since I have been taking it, I have not had any. On November 11, 1910, I started to work, and since that time I have not lost one day's work through sickness. I can highly recommend Beckman's Alternative to anyone who is suffering from Tuberculosis of Glands. Trouble providing they take it as directed. I will gladly correspond with any party desiring further information of what the medicine did for me." (Signed) JAMES J. WILKINSON.

Beckman's Alternative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. Ask for booklet telling of recoveries and write to Beckman Laboratories, Philadelphia, Pa., for evidence. For sale by all leading druggists and in Portsmouth by Benjamin Green.

The Record of Your Life.

The face is the parchment upon which is written the history of our inner lives. No learning is needed to read this record; the simplest read it readily and truly; even the dog interprets it aright. The record is not always what we would have the world to read, but none the less it is the truthful record of our thoughts and ideals, our hopes and fears, our aspirations and ambitions. Our hopes, our discouragements, our vices, our virtues are all faithfully chiseled there by a master sculptor who never makes a false stroke. Homeliness is not hereditary. It is self-made. The most irregular features may be beautified by a glow of kindly expression. On the other hand the most perfectly formed face may be marred and rendered repulsive by the scowl of greed, hate, envy. One of the most famous beauties of the Paris salon is horribly pockmarked. The face is the map of life, where character outlines itself so clearly that there is no getting away from the story it tells. No matter how we may try to cover it up, it is a never-failing signboard, showing which way the real man or woman has gone—which of life's crossroads has been taken.

Drugstore shelves are loaded with cosmetics and beautifiers. Electricity, face massage and many other means are employed to keep the face young and pretty. But real beauty is not to be rubbed on or shot in. It comes from within out, or not at all. Embarrassment sends a flush to the face; fear turns it white. Not less readable and far more permanent are the marks which petulance, irritability and selfishness set there. Skilled police detectives pick a crook out of a crowd by his face. Practical business men employ or reject an applicant for a position after a look at him. The best letter of recommendation ever carried, if truly deserved, is carried in the countenance—Mirror.

Emulation in Scholarship.

The old-fashioned spelling bee is to prevail in the state of Washington. Mrs. Josephine Corliss Preston of Walla Walla has been elected state superintendent of schools, and she says the bee must be made a state institution, that all the children may be taught to spell the words correctly. She has observed that the bee has worked out reform as to spelling in Walla Walla county. As the spelling bee is distinctive because of its spirit of contest, like the sports, it may be possible that instructors will wake up by and by that the way to get the children interested in many other studies is to have them contest with others. The bee does not make the speller. That comes natural to some and may be acquired by others in more or less perfection by hard work with the words. Almost all human creatures have some pride and more or less disposition to show off. That is how the spelling bee wins and makes the young people study harder to make a fair showing with others in competition. It is not so easy to make a contest in mathematics which can be carried out in an entertaining way before an audience, but it is not impossible. Neither is a contest in grammatical construction of sentence, or in history and geography. Any of these reduced to the live spirit of contention for the best demonstration among the pupils of a city or several cities would make the schools worth more, take more of the attention of the pupils and bring about better results. That is what makes the boys like the sports, and the girls also. There is life in it. Try it in more than spelling!—Worcester Telegram.

The Boss Parishioner.

The church President Taft has been attending in Washington to have a beautiful new building. The same thing happened in the case of the Reformed church where President Roosevelt worshipped. The presence of a president in a church congregation is sufficient to draw large audiences and make an organization prosperous. Perhaps the new president and vice-president, instead of choosing the historic churches of their faith, may seek out others where their presence in the pews would be of aid in developing the organization.—Troy Record.

One Improvement.

From all indication the new parcels post service has made an instantaneous "hit" with the public. The convenience and economy of the arrangement have proven very acceptable, especially to those who have occasion to ship bundles smaller than the size bearing the minimum express charge. One feature will have to be added before the competition with the express companies will be complete. That is the collection of parcels from homes and from boxes.—Newburyport Herald.

Gloria and Edith Gould, Who Appeared In the Tableaux Vivants For Hospital Fund Recently.

Photos copyright, 1913, by American Press Association.

To raise a fund for the support of a nurse at the Postgraduate hospital New York society presented a splendidly successful series of tableaux vivants. On one evening none but children appeared in the poses. Notable among these were the little Misses Gloria and Edith Gould, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould. Gloria, the younger, posed in a Reynolds creation, and Edith, wearing light blue satin trousers and an armor of steel, posed as a Nutter painting. The picture shows the little girls as they appeared in the tableaux costumes. About $3,000 was raised through the affair.

NINETY PER CENT FAVOR A STRIKE

This Vote Will Possibly Tie Up Every Eastern Railroad.

Today the Firemen will have taken a vote to strike on all eastern railroads.

The railroads concede that the result will show ninety per cent, of the 10,000 firemen in favor of a strike. This vote possibly to tie up every eastern railroad, and thereby subject more than half of the people of the United States to great suffering, was taken in the face of the railroads' offer to submit all plans in controversy to an unbiased arbitration commission of five, seven, or nine men.

As for indication that the Firemen will endeavor to gain the support of public opinion for a strike, the railroad managers call attention to the following paragraph from the "Instructions for Taking Strike Ballot," issued by the Firemen's Union: "General Chairman should make arrangements that they believe proper whereby great publicity can be given to all matters in connection with this movement whenever it becomes evident that no settlement can be reached. This publicity should consist of the distribution of circulars to be furnished each lodge by the eastern committee which circulars will be delivered among the business men of the cities, and in addition thereto, arrangements should be made to have matters published in all newspapers."

That a strike seriously menaces the

"Any no circumstances should any person voting be told that there is no danger of a strike, for it is expected that every man will vote just as he intends to act. If he does not expect to leave the service of the company, if necessary, he should not deceive the officers of this Brotherhood by voting yes."

The railroad managers have learned with considerable surprise that the Firemen are also pulling the levers who belong to their Brotherhood. The instructions for taking the strike ballot specifically point out that General Chairman shall instruct local chairmen to request all members of the Brotherhood on engine services, (including firemen, engineers, and conductors) to vote 'yes' or 'no'. These same engineers have had their wages increased by the Arbitration Award recently announced and intended to continue until June 1.

Before the strike vote is counted and the Firemen have gone too far, the railroads wish again to repeat their offer to lay their differences with the men before an unprejudiced board of citizens.

The railroads also desire to call to the attention of the public the following statement contained in the award in the Engineers' case:—

"From the viewpoint of the public it is an intolerable situation when any group of men either employees or employers, whether large or small, have the power to decide that a great section of the country as populous as that of France shall undergo great loss of life, unexampled suffering, and loss of property beyond the power of description, through the stoppage of a necessary public service. This however, is the situation which confronts us as a nation."

CANADA TAKES PRECEDENCE

Grand Trunk Cannot Favor New England.

In view of the arguments that were made before the Massachusetts legislature when the Grand Trunk's subsidiary, the Southern New England Railroad, was seeking its charter, the discussion that was held yesterday in the House of Commons at Ottawa is of special interest here. It shows in a definite and pointed statement that Premier Borden's attitude of the Canadian government toward the Grand Trunk system as a whole, the hold that the government has on this system and what it proposes to demand and obtain from the Chamberlain roads.

A telegram from Ottawa shows that the prime minister replied to a question asked by Edgar Rhodes of Cumberland, as to whether the government knew of proceedings in the state of New York against the Grand Trunk for failing to extend its lines in New England as to the nature of these proceedings, and their effect upon the Grand Trunk's responsibilities under the national transcontinental contract.

Mr. Borden said that the understanding of the government was that proceedings had been taken from Grand Trunk officials by way of indictment for contravention of the United States laws protecting the control of railroads. The Prime Minister enumerated the special statutes regarding the obligations of the Grand Trunk Pacific and added that in the contract and amended contract of 1903-1904 the Grand Trunk assumed obligations respecting the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific. The latter road undertook to operate the eastern section of the National Transcontinental Railway under lease for fifty years agreeing on the Grand Trunk Pacific and not otherwise routed by the shipper should be carried entirely in Canada, the through rates to Canadian ports to be no higher than those to United States ports. The company also contracted not directly or indirectly to advise or encourage the transportation of such freight by routes other than those above mentioned, but in good faith to observe the condition of developing trade through Canadian channels.

The government said Mr. Borden has no information at present that they will be in any way affected. The Grand Trunk Railway holds the capital stock of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company and controls the undertaking of the last named company. The government recognizes its duty to take all appropriate and available steps for the purpose of preventing any violation or disregard of the provisions of the above mentioned contracts and statutes whether by diversion of traffic from Canadian ports and routes or by any such undue or to the People of the State.

Henry F. Hollis, democratic candidate for United States senator, has given out the following statement:

"I desire to express my great appreciation of the loyal devotion of the democratic members of the legislature to their caucus nominee, and of the hearty endorsement of party leaders from every section of the state. This loyalty and steadfastness in the face of powerful influences and persistent misrepresentation of my attitude on public questions, encourages the belief that the democracy of New Hampshire is sure to retain the confidence of the people in this state for years to come."

"Certain interested opponents are busily circulating reports that I have blackguarded prominent business men, and am opposed to the highest interests of the state. Such reports are absolutely false. I have called no man in New Hampshire a 'brute' or 'bum' man, or anything of the sort. I was born in Concord; my ancestors have lived in this state more than two centuries; my entire boyhood and professional life have been spent within its borders. My law partners have been Attorney-General Eastman, Judge James W. Remick and Hon. Harry G. Sargent. Whatever I am or may be I owe to the good will of my fellow citizens. What property I have is in this state. My family and my friends and my clients are vitally interested in New Hampshire's prosperity."

"In the face of all this, it is ridiculous to claim that any act of mine would or could be directed against the best interests of my native state. I am emphatically for a better, bigger and busier New Hampshire; for the prosperity of her wage-earners, and business men, and for the good will of my fellow citizens."

"Such personal attacks as have been made upon me spring from private grudges, and political jealousy. Misrepresentation and abuse generally defeat their own objects but I am confident that they will not defeat the will of the people in this crisis."

PIERCE ACCUSED OF SEAL FUR FRAUD

Had Charge of the Russo-Japanese Peace Conference Arrangements in this City

Herbert H. D. Pierce, former Third Assistant Secretary of State under Roosevelt who had charge of the arrangements for the famous Russo-Japanese peace conference in this city eight years ago is accused of preparing and promoting a fraud at the Hague Tribunal and of other offenses in the report of the congressional committee, which probed for seal conditions at the Pribilof Islands, according to a dispatch from Washington today.

He is charged with having a hand was heard before the Hague Tribunal in an alleged fraudulent claim which last year, and which resulted in award of $50,000 against the government of Russia. He is also accused of telling the tribunal that a notorious British pirate was an American citizen.

The committee says that Russia was wronged and that Pierce is partly to blame. The Secretary of State is urged to take steps to see that the $50,000 is returned to the Russian authorities.

Mr. Pierce in an interview at Washington denies all the charges and declares he is at a loss to know who is making the attack on him.

The committee reported that the North American Commercial Co., had violated the law by killing female seals and yearlings, and recommended evening of Feb. 14 its next regular meeting.

Invitations have been issued for the collation and hop to be given by the Peltie Club on the evening of Feb. 13.

Dr. Dunell, head of the Bulgarian delegation, said with reference to Turkey's reply:

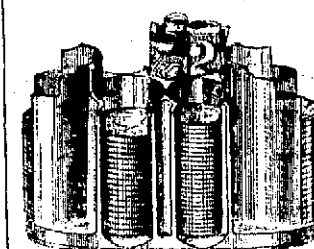

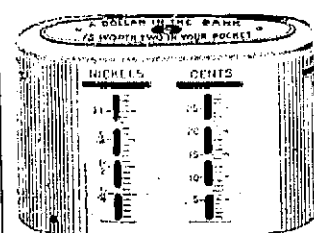

"It is not of a character to form the basis for fresh negotiations."

This, however, is simply a public statement, possibly for the purpose of exercising further pressure on Constantinople. A majority of the allies apparently think that a compromise will be reached.

All the powers have urged the allies to do their utmost to prevent the resumption of hostilities because of the grave complications that might otherwise arise.

HOME RULE BILL IS REJECTED

The Result in the House of Lords Was a Foregone Conclusion.

London, Jan. 30.—After a four hours discussion the House of Lords tonight rejected the home rule bill 128 to 69. The result was a foregone conclusion.

The speeches aroused little interest because, as the Earl of Haldenbury pointed out, the position of the house was now that of an ordinary debating club, the peers could express their views and reject the bill, but they could not prevent it from becoming law.

Nevertheless, the largest number of peers since the famous evening they assailed the parliament bill, assembled in the house and belittled peeresses thronged the side galleries.

The scene was altogether lacking in the dramatic excitement which accompanied the Lords' rejection of Mr. Gladstone's bill in 1893 by a far larger majority, 173. The attendance of peers was quite slack until a couple of hours before division was taken and the speeches failed to infuse new life into the well-worn arguments.

Lord Morley, in closing the debate, remarked the absence of the ferocity which characterized the debates on the Gladstonian measures and, replying to Lord Lansdowne's warning that the giving of home rule to Ireland would be a menace to England if England ever were involved in serious international trouble, reminded Lord Lansdowne that his own last policy would give Ireland cash or credit to the extent of two hundred millions British money, and that Lord Lansdowne would scarcely be likely to do that if he really believed that Ireland were likely to become England's enemy.

Lord Curzon of Kedleston, in a speech earlier in the evening, also referred to the flatness of the public mind shown over the bill and to "the deplorable and unalterable fatness of the debates in the house of commons."

The division was on party lines practically the whole of the Episcopal bench voting against the bill.

THE WORKING OF THE INHERITANCE TAX

Joseph S. Matthews Explains the Great Success With Law in This State.

Mr. Joseph S. Matthews of the Inheritance Tax Department at Concord was the speaker before the Y. M. C. A. Business Men's supper on Thursday evening, and he spoke on the Inheritance Tax. Mr. Matthews had a very lengthy but most interesting address and it is worthy of close study. He said:

The system of raising revenue which is known in our time as the Legacy and Succession Tax, is of ancient origin. It is said that the earliest known inheritance tax was imposed in Egypt in the seventh century before Christ; that the Romans copied the idea from the Egyptians; that it was adopted in Rome in the year A. D. 100, having been suggested to the Senate by the Emperor Augustus, as a means of supporting the Roman Army, and prevailed for about two hundred and fifty years; that it was imposed at the rate of five per cent, upon all legacies or inheritances above a certain value but was not collected from the nearest relatives on the father's side. The simplicity of this ancient Roman law to the present law in New Hampshire is very striking. The limitation of the exemption, however, to the relatives on the father's side, if undertaken in these days would undoubtedly be frowned upon by some of our population.

This method of taxation has long been in use in European countries, and is now practiced in Germany, Austria, France, Switzerland, Holland, Russia, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Greece, Denmark and other countries.

It was first introduced in England in 1796. The first Act applied to transfers of personal property only, but by later statutes, the tax was extended to include successions of real estate, and in later years it has been a fruitful source of revenue. Don Francisco in his work on the legacy tax laws published in 1896 says that at that time the legacy and succession duties in England amounted to over 11,000,000 annually.

The first legacy tax law in the United States was enacted by the State of Pennsylvania in 1824. Maryland followed in 1844, Delaware in 1850 and New York in 1855; since 1891, the extension of this method of taxation in the United States has been very rapid, until at the present time, it is a part of the revenue system of all but nine of the states.

The original act in the state of Pennsylvania and in fact all the earlier acts which were passed in this country, provided for what is known as the collateral inheritance tax only, and did not tax inheritances to the father, mother, husband, wife or first descendants. The tax was first extended in this country to include all inheritances by the state of New York by an act passed in 1891, and similar laws have since been enacted in many other states. The term direct inheritance tax has been applied to those laws which include inheritances to the wife and husband, first descendants and other near relatives, as distinguished from the collateral tax which does not include such inheritances.

Many states which first adopted the collateral tax have since extended the law to include direct inheritances also. The history of inheritance tax legislation in the United States shows a constant tendency in that direction. Twenty-eight states, besides Hawaii and Porto Rico, now impose taxes upon inheritances and in all but thirteen the tax extends to direct inheritances. All direct inheritance tax laws grant liberal exemptions to the widow and children ranging from $5,000 to $20,000 upon each legacy. Exemptions of small amounts are sometimes granted to collateral relatives, but in some states as in New Hampshire, which have the collateral tax only, there is no exemption.

In states where the tax has been limited to collateral inheritances, the rate has with one or two exceptions, been uniformly fixed at five per cent, and without reference to the amount of the inheritance.

Direct inheritance taxes on the other hand have originally provided for progressive rates, ranging from one per cent, or even less upon small legacies to direct heirs, to as high as twenty-five per cent, upon very large amounts passing to distant relatives or strangers. The first attempt to impose an inheritance tax in New Hampshire was made in 1875 by an act entitled "An Act to defray the cost of Probate Courts," Chapter 74, Laws of 1875.

This act imposed a tax of one per cent upon collateral inheritances. It was repealed by Chapter 81 of the General Laws but was afterwards held unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

An amendment to the Constitution was adopted in 1903 which in terms permits a tax upon property when passing by will or inheritance. Following this amendment to the Constitution an act was passed on March 8, 1905, (Chapter 40 of the Laws of 1905) entitled "An Act imposing a tax on collateral legacies and successions." This act provided for a tax of five per cent upon all legacies and successions except to or for the use of the father, mother, husband, wife, blood descendant, brother, sister, adopted child, the blood descendant of any adopted child, the wife or widow of a son or the husband of a daughter, or to or for the use of charitable, educational or religious societies or institutions in this state, or to a city or town in this state for public purposes.

The exemption to charitable and other institutions being limited to those which are "in this state" a subsequent act (Chap. 42 of the Laws of 1911) provides that such institutions shall be deemed to be in this state when their sole object and purpose is to carry on charitable religious or educational work within the state, and not otherwise. By the same act the exemption was extended to include gifts to cemetery associations in the state and all gifts for the care of cemetery lots. Otherwise the present law, so far as the scope or the tax itself is concerned is substantially the same as the original act of 1905.

The administrative features of the original act were however very incomplete and have been greatly changed and enlarged by subsequent legislation. The act of 1905 imposed the administration of the tax upon the state treasurer, and provided that the expenses for the execution of the act should be paid by him, subject to the approval of the Governor and Council but no provision was made for furnishing the treasurer with the information necessary to enable him to properly administer the law, except that an inventory of every estate which might be subject to the tax should be filed by the executor or administrator in the probate court, and that a copy of the same should be furnished the treasurer by the register of probate, and that notice should be served upon the treasurer of an intended transfer, by the holder, of securities or other personal assets belonging to a foreign estate.

Also, it soon became apparent that the administration of the law involved the constant consideration of questions of law and the treasurer not being himself a lawyer, found himself with an elephant on his hands.

Under these circumstances the Governor and Council authorized the treasurer to secure the services of an attorney to assist him in the administration of the law.

Under the authority thus granted, I was employed, early in the year 1906, and undertook the task of working out and putting into practice, some sort of an administrative system, which would ensure to the state the revenue which the law was intended to provide.

At first the volume of business was not sufficient to occupy more than a part of the time of an attorney, and the work was undertaken on a per diem basis, in connection with private practice.

Under the system which was inaugurated however the volume of business rapidly increased until it became apparent that, if the law was to be properly administered and the state to receive the revenue to which it was entitled, provision should be made to command the constant attendance of the attorney in charge.

Such provision was made by an act passed at the session of 1909 and now in force, which requires the attorney to devote his entire time to the work upon a salary basis, in addition to which he is provided with two assistants who are constantly employed.

One of the most important items in the administrative system which was adopted was what is known as the administrator's statement. In itself, it is a very simple matter, and I am not aware that anything like it is in use in any other state. It consists of a single page blank upon which the executor or administrator enters the names of all the beneficiaries, with their relationship to the decedent, the date of death, and other data which the treasurer needs in all cases in order to deal with the estate.

The law requires him to prepare and file this statement in duplicate in the Probate Office, when he receives his appointment and provides that letters of administration shall not be issued to any executor or administrator until he has done so. One copy is then forwarded by the register to the state treasurer. By this means the attention of every executor and administrator is directed at the time of his appointment to the existence of the tax law and the fact that he has a duty to perform in connection with it. It furnishes the treasurer with information by means of which he is able to pass upon every estate which is admitted to probate whether subject to the tax or not, and at the same time frequently saves executors and administrators from mistakes which might otherwise subject them to much annoyance and expense.

The register of probate also furnishes the treasurer, at stated periods, with complete lists of all the estates which are admitted to probate. The statements, as they come in are checked upon these lists, and every estate not thus accounted for is investigated. If the statement shows upon its face that the estate cannot be subject to the tax, it is filed away, and that is the end of the case. All other cases are entered on the books and put through the mill.

Copies of all wills which appear to subject estates to the tax law are also furnished the state treasurer by the registers of probate. These are compared with the statements and the treasurer thus obtains a double check upon every such estate.

A recent instance will illustrate the value of the double check. A foreign executor who was also the sole beneficiary, desiring to transfer a deposit in a New Hampshire Savings Bank, filed a statement in which he described himself as the husband of the decedent. We called for a copy of the will. The will referred to him as a nephew. We asked for further information and in reply received a letter from an attorney who said that the executor had been mistaken in regard to his relationship to the decedent and that he was in fact a nephew and not the husband, and was now willing to pay his tax. I am happy to say that the executor in question was not a citizen of New Hampshire but lived over the line in Maine.

It is the duty of the executor or administrator to collect the tax from the beneficiary and pay it over to the State Treasurer, and he is himself liable for the tax till it is paid and the fulfillment of this obligation is secured by his bond.

The state also has a lien upon all property, the transfer of which is subject to this tax, until the tax is paid.

Under the law as first enacted, original jurisdiction to determine the amount of the tax was given to the judges of probate although in practice the tax was ordinarily computed by the state treasurer and the court was not called upon except in disputed cases. The point was made by a member of the Portsmouth Bar that under this law the lien of the state upon the real estate was not vacated by the payment of a tax based upon a computation made by the state treasurer, but still remained a cloud upon the title, that the treasurer's receipt for such a payment filed in the probate office was not effective to clear the record title, and that the lien could be vacated only by a determination of the tax by the probate court upon a proceeding for that purpose and payment in accordance with the decree of the court.

To obviate this difficulty, as well as for other reasons, the law has since been amended so that the tax is now determined in the first instance by the treasurer subject to appeal to the probate court, and the certificate of the treasurer as to the amount if not appealed from, accompanied by his receipt for the payment of such amount, is made conclusive evidence of the payment and when filed in the probate office serves to clear the record title to the real estate from the lien.

Where property is bequeathed or devised for life or a term of years to a person who is exempt from tax with remainder to a person subject to tax, or vice versa, the law provides that the value of the intermediate estate shall be computed by the actuary's combined experience tables at four per cent. The amount arrived at by such computation fixes the value of the intermediate estate and the value of the remainder is determined by subtracting this amount from the total amount of the legacy. For the purpose of the tax, the values thus arrived at are final and are not affected by the actual length of life of the first taker or the amount which in the end each beneficiary may actually receive.

Under this rule the adjustment of the tax was sufficiently simple when the intermediate estate was limited to a life estate, but much difficulty was experienced in cases where the first taker was also entitled subject to the discretion of a trustee, or otherwise to expend the principal, or where the identity of the person who would take the remainder was subject to some contingency, so that it was impossible to tell whether the remainder would pass to a person taxable or a person exempt until the termination of the intermediate estate. Under the original law no provision was made for the ascertainment of the value of the intermediate estate or for the adjustment of the tax upon the remainder in such cases, and here was nothing to be done except to defer the adjustment of the tax until the termination of the intermediate estate. Meanwhile the executor, although chargeable with the tax, was unable to fulfill his obligation or to settle a final account upon the estate, and the lien of the state upon the real estate continued to remain a cloud upon the title. It also resulted in a constantly increasing number of unsettled cases in the treasurer's office which could not be disposed of, many of which were likely to remain in that situation for many years.

To meet this condition, an act was first passed in 1907, authorizing the treasurer, with the consent of the attorney-general, to adjust the tax in such cases by compromise. This act was a help, but did not entirely obviate the difficulty and the law has been further amended so that now the treasurer is authorized, subject to appeal to the probate court, to fix the value of the intermediate estate upon the best evidence obtainable and the value thus determined unless altered by the court upon appeal is deemed to be the value for the purpose of the tax. The process is in its nature the same as the ordinary appraisement of chattels or other personal property by appraisers appointed by the court.

When the identity of the person who will take the remainder cannot be determined, a tax upon such remainder is now assessed and collected, as upon a taxable legacy. Upon payment of the amount thus assessed the executor is relieved from his liability, and may proceed with the settlement of the estate, and the title to the real estate is released from the lien. The amount paid in such a case, however, is in the nature of a deposit to secure the payment of the tax if any, when its true amount can be ascertained, because the law further provides that if, at the termination of the intermediate estate, it turns out that any portion of the property is to pass to a person exempt from taxation, such beneficiary may recover from the treasurer the amount originally paid as tax upon the legacy, with interest from the date of payment at the rate of three per cent per annum.

Another amendment provides that if the executor or administrator fails to file his inventory within the three months allowed by the statute, the state treasurer may employ a suitable person to appraise the property and the executor or administrator is required, under penalty to show the property of the decedent to such appraiser and make and subscribe his oath that the property thus shown includes all the property of the decedent that has come to his knowledge or possession. Prior to this amendment there had been many cases in which there had been much difficulty in securing an inventory.

The present law also provides that the state treasurer shall be entitled to appear in any proceeding in any court in which the decree may in any way affect the tax and that no decree in any such proceeding or upon appeal therefrom shall be binding upon the state unless personal notice of the proceeding shall have been given to the treasurer.

We have been very fortunate in obtaining favorable action by the legislature upon all the improvements, which have been proposed, and the administrative system as now constituted is up to date and complete in every detail. Its value is clearly shown by the increase in the revenue from about $3,000 in 1906 to over $170,000 in 1912. The yearly revenue for the seven years has been as follows:

1907, (15 mos.)	$5,396.82
1908, (3,275.55)
1909, $8,469.42
1910, 125,128.55
1911, 145,618.22
1912, 114,888.11
1912, 171,039.84

In the course of the preparation of this paper, it occurred to me that it might be interesting to know how the revenue which we have obtained in New Hampshire compares with the revenue which has been received in other states under similar laws. To get at this I first ascertained what percentage of the population of each of the thirteen states, which have the collateral tax only, is represented by the population of New Hampshire and then found the same percentage of the revenue received in each of these states. Next I ascertained what percentage of the wealth of each of these states was represented by the wealth of the state of New Hampshire and again took the corresponding percentage of the revenue. I then took the average of the two results as representing approximately the proportionate amount of revenue which these states were receiving. In making this computation, I took the revenue receipts for 1912 in all cases except the state of Maryland where the 1911 figures were the latest which I could secure. The wealth and population were ascertained by reference to the census returns for 1910, showing the population and assessed value of the property of the several states. The result is shown by the following figures:

New Hampshire, $171,039.
New Jersey, 163,642.
Vermont, 145,605.
Pennsylvania, 128,005.
Maryland, 108,647.
Iowa, 99,988.
Missouri, 81,518.
Kentucky, 33,012.
Virginia, 19,387.
Delaware, 17,708.
Ohio, 8,398.
North Dakota, Revenue figures not received.
Texas, Do.

Under New Hampshire law, there is no exemption of any stated amount. Personally, I think there ought not to be. Cases are very rare where a person receiving a legacy, which is taxable under a collateral tax, has lost his means of support by reason of the death of the decedent from whose estate the inheritance or legacy comes.

Clearly every taxable legacy or inheritance is a pure gratuity which has lost the recipient nothing. The case is very different from that of the widow and children who are granted liberal exemptions under the direct tax, because by reason of the death of the decedent their means of support has been taken away from them.

It seems to me that the only reason for an exemption from a collateral tax must lie in a desire to avoid unnecessary labor by eliminating the necessity of computing taxes upon small amounts where it might be said that the amount received was not worth the trouble of the assessment and collection. But such an exemption would not in my opinion accomplish this purpose. Under our constitution, as I understand the ruling of the courts, an exemption of a stated sum would have to be applied to all legacies, however large. For instance, if the exemption were $100, we should not only be obliged to exempt legacies of $100 and less, but would be obliged to deduct $100 from the amount of every other legacy however large. Wills containing 25 or 50 taxable legacies are not infrequent, and the task of deducting an exemption from each one of these, in making the computation, would far exceed the labor that would be saved by dropping off the small legacies.

Furthermore an exemption of that sort applying to every legacy would result in serious loss of revenue. Some time ago, I made an effort to estimate how much loss would result from a $500 exemption and for that purpose I took six estates the total values of which ranged from about $12,000 to $25,000. The amount which we had received as tax upon these estates under the present law amounted to $5,394.13. I then figured what we would have received if there had been an exemption of $500 such as I have described and found that with such an exemption, the tax would be $2,200.25, or about two-fifths of the amount which we have received. These were all fairly large estates. The percentage of loss on small estates would of course be larger, whereas in other large estates where there were fewer beneficiaries, it might be less, but the above figures are probably a fair average.

There has, however, been reasonable ground for complaint because of the tax on specific bequests of chattels of small value. It was somewhat absurd to place upon an executor the duty of announcing to a beneficiary that the decedent had bequeathed him a walking stick worth $1.00, which he would be pleased to deliver to him upon payment of five cents; or a silver spoon which he could have upon condition that he contribute two cents for the benefit of the Commonwealth. This difficulty, however, now has been obviated by the act of 1911, which now gives to the state treasurer the authority to abate the tax in all such cases, if in his opinion, it is not of sufficient amount to justify the expense and labor of its collection.

One objectionable feature in the original act which has not yet been removed is the element of double taxation resulting from the non resident tax. Under our law all transfers of shares of stock in New Hampshire corporations, deposits in New Hampshire savings banks, or other personal property within the state belonging to the estate of a non resident, are subjected to a tax. In New Hampshire notwithstanding the fact that the same property is also taxed at its full value in the state or domicile, by reason of this and of similar laws in adjoining states, a single transfer of Boston and Maine stock has been transferred in three states, viz. Maine, New Hampshire, and Massachusetts, New York and Vermont.

Another objection to the transfer of stock is the delay and expense it occasions, and which in many instances is of more real consequence than the amount of the tax. In the administration of this branch of the law, it is necessary that every transfer of such property, whether in the end it proves to be subject to take or not shall go through the mill and the executor is required to furnish the state treasurer with all the documents and information necessary to enable him to determine whether or not the transfer is subject to tax, and if so to compute the amount. Cases are not infrequent where a month or six weeks are required to get together the data necessary to enable the treasurer to determine the tax. Similar laws being in force in other states, the executor or administrator is compelled to go through the same process in every state in whose corporations stocks are held. In the settlement of large estates this frequently amounts to an enormous burden. In addition to the tax which must be paid at the end of the transaction.

For the purpose of bettering these conditions, what are known as reciprocal laws were passed in some of the states. The theory of the reciprocal law is to tax the estates of citizens of another state, if that state taxes our citizens, but otherwise to exempt them. These laws did not prove satisfactory because they were only partially successful in removing the element of double taxation, and in many cases made the adjustment of the tax even more complicated than before. A better solution was proposed by the committee on legacy
